

APS College of Clinical Neuropsychology 2017 conference – Demonstrating Value

While attending the 22nd annual Conference of the APS College of Clinical Neuropsychology (CCN) in Perth, Australia, Professor Michael Kopelman, INS President, presented a Keynote address titled “Anomalies of autobiographical memory” and a workshop on “Neuroscience memory and the law.”

INS and CCN sign Memo of Understanding

Dr. Kopelman (pictured right), together with Dr. Simon Crowe, Chair of the CCN (pictured left) also signed a Memo of Understanding between INS and CCN that provides a framework for maintaining regular communication between the organizations, voluntary collaboration on matters of mutual interest, exchange of information and expertise, and “otherwise cooperate for the betterment of Neuropsychology in the public interest.” CCN has a membership of 561 and represents a specific area of practice within the 23,000 member Australian Psychological Society (APS), that is charged with promoting neuropsychology, practice standards, quality assurance, and support of educational and professional development of its members.